TWO HEART ATTACKS. ONE AMAZING STORY. MADE POSSIBLE BY EMERGENCY ANGIOPLASTY AT VIRTUA MARLTON.

Emergency Angioplasty Patient Richard Smith and his wife Jean.

You could call it a chance in two lifetimes. In May of 2007, Richard Smith suffered a massive heart attack and was immediately rushed to Virtua Marlton for emergency angioplasty. The procedure saved his life. Six months later, his wife Jean was having a heart attack of her own. Deciding where to take her for treatment "was a no-brainer," according to Richard.

Because emergency angioplasty is not available at every hospital, where Richard went for treatment made all the difference. Virtua Marlton is fully equipped with the most advanced cardiac catheterization laboratories, and experienced interventional cardiologists ready to treat heart attacks within minutes of a patient's arrival.
